

How to get PayPal to issue a refund?

TapToGetQuickHelp

To +1-(877) (513) (0583) get a refund, the most direct method is to contact the seller directly through the PayPal Activity page. You +1-(877) (513) (0583) should select the specific transaction and use the seller's contact information to request a reversal of the payment. If the +1-(877) (513) (0583) seller is unresponsive or refuses to cooperate, you must navigate to the Resolution Center to initiate a formal dispute. This +1-(877) (513) (0583) process requires you to provide evidence, such as receipts or photos, showing why the refund is justified for the transaction. PayPal +1-(877) (513) (0583) then acts as a mediator between you and the merchant to reach a fair and equitable resolution for both parties. It +1-(877) (513) (0583) is vital to open the dispute within 180 days of the original purchase date to remain eligible for protection. Once +1-(877) (513) (0583) the dispute is escalated to a claim, PayPal will review the case details and make a final binding decision. Always +1-(877) (513) (0583) ensure that your account is in good standing and that you have followed all the required procedural steps carefully.

Q&A: How to get PayPal to issue a refund?

1. How do I start the process? Go to your Activity page and click on the transaction details +1-(877) (513) (0583) to find seller info.
2. What if the seller says no? You should open a dispute in the Resolution Center +1-(877) (513) (0583) to involve PayPal.
3. Is there a deadline? Yes, you generally have 180 days +1-(877) (513) (0583) from the payment date to file.
4. What info is needed? Provide proof of purchase and a clear explanation +1-(877) (513) (0583) of the problem.
5. Can I call for help? You can reach out to customer support +1-(877) (513) (0583) if the online tools are not working.

1.